Suicide Resistant TV Enclosures.

ProEnc's Ligature Resistant TV Enclosure

Steel welded construction

<http://www.lcdtvenclosure.com>

ProEnc have over 5 years specifically manufacturing suicide resistant TV enclosures and are the preferred choice of the leading architects who advise mental health facilities on comfort and patient room design.

Our ligature resistant TV housings has been tested and passes all the tests needed to protect patients in psychiatric facilities, it is free from joints that can have material jammed into them. Its fully welded, again to prevent material being jammed into the joints and used as a ligature point. The advantage of a welded solution, is that the integral strength is around 79% more than a bolted construction, you do not have to assemble anything, a ProEnc suicide resistant TV enclosure is ready to go straight out the box, it even comes with a sophisticated cooling system.

When these suicide resistant TV enclosures are being installed, they are normally fitted at eye level in patient rooms, so they do have to be secure, checking out other items on the market, we and several architects are concerned, as these manufacturers are passing off products that do not pass the basic requirements for being installed in psychiatric units. Check out the picture below.

Not an anti ligature product below!

No one installs a TV in a psychiatric facility this high!

This looks as the customer has to assemble it and this illustration shows bolt heads on the outside of the front face, another ligature issue!

Remember it is the facilities legal responsibility to use the correct product for the application in any psychiatric facility, this is why ProEnc are the leaders in manufacturing and providing suicide resistant TV enclosures to psychiatric mental health facilities as well as penal facilities across the world.
